(Newspaper obituary)

(From Brinkerhoff's History of Marion Co. , IL)

Daniel Lovell moved to this township in 1832, and David England the same year; Thomas T. Jones in 1834, Thomas C. Smith in 1837. Henderson Hensley came in the same year.

Nicholas Van Dusen, of Massachusetts, moved to Ohio, then to Illinois and in 1840 settled in this township. The late Henry A. Van Dusen, the noted Christian preacher, was his son. Andrew Beard and his brother, John, came in 1840, and John Wantland from Tennessee, first settled in Red Lick Prairie in 1826, and in 1841 moved to this township. Thomas Chapman also settled in this township in 1841. Blackburn Brown, son of Alexander Brown, who was living at Stringtown as early as 1831, came to Omega in 1845, and died here in 1908, about ninety years of age. There are no railroads touching Omega and the township is strictly an agricultural one. Henry Piles built the first house in the township.

SAMUEL W. LOVELL (from Brinkerhoff's History of Marion Co. , IL)

Samuel W. Lovell was born one mile south of Omega, September 20, 1839, and was therefore sixty-nine years old at this writing, 1908. He is the son of Markham C. and Polly D. Lovell, the former having been born in Tennessee in 1801. He first moved to Kentucky and then to Illinois, in which state he passed to his reward April 5, 1880, at the age of seventy-nine years.

Samuel W. Lovell remained under the parental roof until maturity, having attended such primitive schools as the country afforded in those early times. When the fierce fires of rebellion were sweepng over the Southland he enlisted in defense of the old flag in the three months' service, but at the end of thirty days he came home, having taken typhoid fever and he did not re-enlist until August of 1862, when he enlisted for three years. He was in seventeen engagements and skirmishes under Gen. James S. Martin, of the famous One Hundred and Eleventh Illinois Regiment, under whose command he engaged in seventeen skirmishes and eight battles. The record of this regiment as given by Mr. Lovell is as follows: Forty-six killed, one hundred and forty-four wounded, eleven died in prison, ninety-three in hospitals and seventy-one discharged for disability, the total loss being three hundred and sixty-five. The regiment marched one thousand eight hundred and thirty-six miles, was transported by water six hundred and fifty miles and by rail one thousand two hundred and fifty miles, from the time our subject left Camp Marshall at Salem, Illinois, until he was mustered out at Camp Butler, at Springfield, June 27, 1865. This is according to the adjutant general's report. This regiment was in the Fifteenth Corps under Gen. John A. Logan and Gen. William T. Sherman, whom the regiment followed from Atlanta to the sea. Mr. Lovell carries the remarkable record of never having been in the hospital during the whole time of his enlistment. He is today hale and hearty, happy and jovial, and enjoys the hospitality of the old guard and friends in his nice home in Omega where he lives a serene and contented life with his faithful life companion whom he married November 10, 1861. Her maiden name was Nancy Hoskins, daughter of Harrison and Frances (Kain) Hoskins. Her father was born in Louisville, Kentucky, in 1803 and died in 1865, at the age of sixty-two years. Frances Kain was born in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, in 1807, and passed to her rest in 1887. at the age of eighty years. There were five children in the family of our subject's wife's parents, three of whom are now living, Nancy being the second child in order of birth. The early education of our subject's wife was received in Clay, near Xenia, Illinois. Thus they have led a happy and harmonious married life of forty-six years. No children have been born to this union.

Mr. Lovell has spent most of his life in agricultural pursuits, making a pronounced success of the same, being regarded as one of the leading farmers of his community. He still owns forty-two and one-half acres of good land. In 1891 he moved to Omega in honorable retirement. He followed farming until fifty-three years of age, then he retired. He has served his county as Highway Commissioner and School Director for several terms in a most efficient and conscientious manner. He is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, post at Kinmundy, and is a member of the Anti-Horse Thief Association of the state. Politically he believes in good government and voted his first ballot for Abraham Lincoln in McLean county, Illinois, in 1860. Religiously he is a member of the Christian church. He gets a service pension of twelve dollars per month. No one in Omega or this township is better known than our subject.

WILLIAM A. JONES. (from Brinkerhoff's History of Marion Co. , IL)

William A. Jones was born in Clay county, Illinois, April 4, 1859, the son of D. G. and Rebecca (Ferris) Jones, being the fifth child in order of birth in a family consisting of eleven children, four girls and seven boys. The subject's parents were people of many praiseworthy characteristics, and tried to raise their children to be noble men and women, giving them every advantage possible.

The early education of our subject was obtained in the district schools of the county of his birth which he attended until he was nearly twenty-one years old. In the meantime he was assisting with the farm work at home.

When he reached manhood he went to work for his father on the home place, having been given a chance to make his own way in the world. When twenty-one years old he was united in marriage on March 2, 1881, to Clara Turner, the daughter of Alfred and Sarah A. (Perry) Turner. In her family were eleven children, eight girls and three boys, Clara being the fourth child in order of birth, the date of her birth having occurred September 9, 1856, in Terre Haute, Indiana. This union has been a happy and harmonious one and has resulted in the birth of five children, four of whom are living, an equal number of boys and girls, namely: Grover C, Murry, Jessie and Georgie F. These children are all bright and are living at home, the girls being in school at this writing (1908).

D. G. Jones, father of our subject, is a lineal descendant of Cherokee Indians, and the family is proud of their Indian blood, and they should be, since the Cherokee Indians are universally regarded as the most intelligent and highly civilized and best of all the Indian tribes. Some of the ancestors of the Jones family were Marshalls.

The subject's father was called from his earthly labors in 1886. The subject's mother, a fine old lady of beautiful Christian character, is living in Centralia, this state, at the advanced age of eighty years.

William A. Jones is the owner of two hundred and twenty acres of well improved land, which constitutes one of the finest farms in this locality. It is well drained and well fenced, and the crops have been so rotated as to preserve the original strength of the soil. General farming is carried on in such a way as to reward our subject with rich harvests and a comfortable income from year to year. Twenty-five acres of this land are set in orchard trees and no small portion of the income off the place is derived from them, when the season is favorable for fruit growing. Mr. Jones takes a great interest in his orchard and is one of the best horticulturists in Omega township.

Mr. Jones has ably served his community as Township Commissioner for a period of six years, as School Director for four terms and as Township Trustee for two terms. He has been frequently called to adjust and appraise property. In all the capacities in which he has served the public he has given entire satisfaction and has been as conscientious as if he had been laboring on his own affairs. In politics he is a Democrat and cast his first vote for Gen. Winfield Hancock. He has ever taken much interest in the deliberations of his party and given his time and influence to its support. In religious matters Mr. Jones' parents were members of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, but he is a member of the Christian church, while his wife is a faithful supporter of the Southern Methodist church. No man in Omega township is better or more favorably known than Mr. Jones.
